CONFIDENTIALITY DEFINED

- ▶ Social Worker Responsibility to Keep Client Information Confidential
 - Confidentiality means that information shared within a relationship will not be shared outside that relationship. The expectation is that what a client tells a social worker, the social worker will not reveal to others.
- ▶ Attorney's Duty of Confidentiality
 - The ethical duty of a lawyer not to affirmatively disclose information related to the representation of a client. Unlike the attorney-client privilege, the duty of confidentiality is in effect at all times, not just in the face of legal demands for client information.

WHAT IS CONFIDENTIALITY

- ▶ Philosophical Underpinning: Trust
- ▶ Purpose: Promotes Well-being of the Individual
- ▶ Confidentiality Defined
- ▶ Restricting information to persons belonging to a set of specifically authorized recipients (achieved) through professional silence and secure data management (Allen, 2015).

Collaboration

Sharing information is the most visible aspect of collaborative work (Darlington, et a., 2005), the purpose of which is to obtain a holistic view of a victim so that the best possible recommendations/services can be provided (Jaffe, Dawson & Campbell, 2013).
