Principles Common to Adult Learners

• We build new knowledge on what we already know.

• Learning is a continuous process - always changing and adapting to new experiences/needs during our lifetime.

• Learners have their own experiences, constraints and learning preferences.

The Brain’s Ability To Grow and Adapt

- Billions of brain cells called “neurons.”
- Neurons connect to form networks/pathways.
- Can strengthen existing pathways and form new ones. ("plasticity")
- As long as the brain is stimulated, it can keep growing and adapting.

Supervisor as Trainer

Adult Learning Principles

• Seeing the relevance (How and why will this help me?)
• Taking ownership and making choices
• Building on prior knowledge and experiences
• Accepting the need to grow and change
• Utilizing problem-solving approaches
• Wanting to be successful learners

And benefitting from repetition and practice!

Notes: ________________________________________________________________
Supervisor as Trainer

Repetition and Practice...
When training content is new to the learner, there may not be prior knowledge or experience to connect with in the brain. The initial learning is often superficial and may not be retained very long.

Frequent repetition and practice allow learners to build connections and reinforce new brain pathways. Training content gradually becomes more meaningful and permanent.

What Do You Think Could Be Barriers To Adult Learning?

Notes:

________________________________________

Supervisor as Trainer

Common Barriers

• Fear of making mistakes
• Not understanding the relevance
• Resistance to change
• Not enough training time allotted
• Overly-formal atmosphere
• Others?

Notes:

Supervisor as Trainer

Supervisors can apply adult learning principles during their case consultations and staff meetings.

• Promote supportive environment and climate of risk-taking.
• Define relevance clearly.
• Repeat key points several times.
• Let trainees “teach back.”
• Provide constructive feedback.
• Ensure frequent opportunities for review and practice

Formal Settings . . .

- Instructor-led
- Structured and focused on specific topic
- Usually time-limited
- Diverse participant pool
- Presented by someone other than yourself

Delivered in-person, virtually or by e-learning

Notes:

Supervisor as Trainer

Individual and Small Group Settings . . .

Individual
- One-on-one time with supervisor
- Structured observations with staff
- On-the-job practice

Small Group
- Good environment for learning together, practicing skills, and teaching one another
- Can be scheduled as a staff training or part of a staff meeting
- Engage staff in selecting topics and peer presenters and in preparing training materials

Notes:
Supervisor as Trainer

“Teachable Moments”

- Can be individual or group
- Evolve from mistakes or successes
- Good opportunities for learning, reflection and problem-solving.

Workshops/Conference Settings . . .

- Usually off-site and outside the group
- Supervisor considerations
  - how long will trainee be away from office?
  - Am I familiar with the trainer?
  - Is the content standardized?
- Post-training assessment of understanding of content, accuracy of materials, new changes
- Opportunity for attendees to share learning with team.

Characteristics and Benefits of Various Training Techniques

❖ Lectures
  • Presenter conveys information to a group of learners by talking.
  • Expert information can be shared in a time-efficient manner with a large number of people.
  • Information is not altered or sidetracked by comments from attendees.
  • Learning through lectures can be enhanced by visuals, Q&A opportunities, and follow-up discussions

❖ Case Studies
  • Key points are very effective when using real-life situations
  • Helps with developing analysis skills
  • Multiple points of view help learners understand important concepts.
  • May be relevant to the lives and/or experiences of the learners.
  • Learners are active participants in the process.

❖ Instructional Videos
  • Training videos are designed to improve job skills.
  • They commonly cover interpersonal topics (compliance training) or job-specific topics.
  • Use footage and stories of real people to help bolster the connection between the content and trainee and improves retention.
  • Helpful as a “lead-in” for discussions and reinforcement of key training points.

❖ Reading & Writing Assignments
  • Reading assignments
    o Manuals (to become familiar with state and agency statues, policies & protocols)
    o Standardized training materials
    o Case reports
  • Writing assignments
    o Journaling
    o Practice in documentation and report writing

❖ Brainstorming
  • A method of problem solving as a group.
  • All team members can share ideas that are listened to.
  • All ideas are accepted as valid and no one is ignored.
  • Good technique to use when the learning objective is pulling together shared ideas of (ex. choosing a topic for a team training)

❖ Role Plays
  • Learners act out roles presented in an open-ended situation
• Participants supply their own dialog within the context of the roles and the situations and develop their own outcome to the scenario presented.
• Good choice for a learning objective that involves person-to-person communication.
• Participants get to see, experience, and/or feel a new point of view.
• Participants are more inclined to express their true viewpoints if they are playing a role.

❖ Discussions

• A planned conversation (exchange of ideas or viewpoints) on a selected topic and guided by a trained discussion leader
• Can stimulate interest among learners when ideas and experiences of the group help them to discover the point they are learning.
• Needs an experienced discussion leader with knowledge to guide discussion and keep on track.
• It allows multiple points of view to be expressed and all learners (even new or shy ones) to express opinions and listen to the opinions of others on their team.

❖ Structured Observations

• Form of on-the-job training
• Supervisor assigns specific job functions for learner to observe during planned sessions with experienced staff.
• Learner accompanies staff, makes observations, and reports back/discusses observations with supervisor.
• Supervisor repeats as needed adding more functions to observe with different staff members.

❖ Shadowing

• Learner follows and observes a trained and experienced staff member as they carry out their work.
• Form of on-the-job training that allows a learner to see and understand the nuances of a particular job.
• Effective when seeing is an important component of the learning.
• New staff gets to know and interact with experienced staff.

❖ Coaching

• Training technique used to improve a staff member’s performance
• Focuses on the individual needs of the learner
• As a coach, the supervisor
  o Answers questions
  o Suggests more effective strategies
  o Corrects errors
  o Guides toward goals
  o Gives constructive feedback and encouragement

Small Group Training Tasks:
Group #1 - Identify several training strategies to increase a new staff member's knowledge of the aging process.
Group #2 - Identify several training strategies for staff needing to increase knowledge and skills for serving adults living with disability.
Group #3 - Identify several training strategies for increasing staff knowledge and skills for investigating reports of alleged financial exploitation.
Group #4 - Identify several training strategies for increasing staff knowledge and skills to complete accurate risk assessments.
Group #5 - Identify several training strategies to increase staff knowledge and skills for investigating reports of alleged self-neglect.

Phases of Learning

Learner Characteristics and Suggested Learning Activities

Learners move from one phase of learning to the next when learning something new. How long individual learners spend in each phase depends on their own learning style and pace. Some learners may not reach the final stage for a particular area of knowledge or skill, but still be able to perform it with competence.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Phase of Learning</th>
<th>Learner Characteristics / Suggested Activities</th>

</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>(Phase One)</td>
<td>“Unconscious Incompetent”</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

Learners for whom the content or skill to be learned is new. Most often applies to new staff early in the onboarding process. However, can also apply to any learner needing to learn new information or skills.

New learners in this phase will not readily retain complex information during training because they don’t have a conceptual framework on which to “hang” the new information.

Learners:
- Do not have context for or experience with the learning content. Need to build learning pathways in brain.
- Need frequent review and opportunities to practice.

APS supervisor can:
- Assess background and current skills (What do they already know? Can you give them an assignment that lets them make an immediate contribution to the team?)
- Avoid overwhelming with too much information at one time.
- Begin with overview of program and how they fit.
- Talk about expectations and evaluations of performance.
- Provide written information on APS (statutes, regulations, policies and procedures) and follow with a chance to address questions.
- Explain the APS process.
- Review a case with the new staff member and let them ask questions.
- Plan structured observations with experienced staff:
  - Identify a few steps in the process to observe.
  - Assign staff member to observe and report back. Debrief on observations.
  - Repeat adding other steps of the process.
- Have new staff member shadow experienced staff in the field.
- Have new staff member complete an investigation assisted by an experienced staff member
  - Include both in debriefing sessions
  - Look for teachable moments
  - Repeat with different client populations and types of allegations.

Supervisor as Trainer

Ways to Evaluate Effectiveness of Training

• Assess staff member’s application of training content to real life cases
  - Case review
  - Interviewing and assessment skills
  - Creation of service plans
  - Accurate and complete documentation

• Assess client outcomes
  - Is the client safer?
  - Respect for client self-autonomy?
  - Are services in compliance?

• Staff self-evaluations

When Learning Hits a Roadblock

Factors to Consider When Dealing with Staff Roadblocks

• Is this a single instance or a pattern of behavior over time?
• How is this affecting you and the team?
• Are you avoiding accountability issues with your staff?
  ➢ What issues is the staff member avoiding?
  ➢ What are the consequences to the team?
• What is the staff member’s perspective? What are they needing?

Notes:
Supervisor as Trainer

1. In your small group, share with each other your experience with staff members who seem “stuck” and how you have responded.

2. Next, choose one of the examples to discuss in more depth and to identify a few strategies for responding effectively.

3. Report your suggestions to the full group.

SAMPLE TRANSFER OF LEARNING TOOL

This handout is a sample tool that can be utilized to evaluate a new staff’s integration of APS policies and regulations. It was developed specific to regulations in the state of California but could be adapted for use in other states. A supervisor would utilize this tool to review a recent case collaboratively with a new staff member.

Please review one of your recent cases with your supervisor using the following template.

Tips for New Supervisors

• Take time to understand the team dynamics
• Practice saying “Thank you for letting me know how things have been done in the past.”
• Be open-minded as you assess what is needed and how you will respond.
• Evaluate your own style and methods as needed.
• Use training resources designed for you.

A Transfer of Learning Follow-Up Assignment for You

1. Develop a training activity to meet a specific training need that you describe.

2. Describe the types of settings and techniques you will use and why you chose them.

3. Include any additional training resources you plan to use.

4. Describe how you will evaluate the effectiveness of your training activity.

5. Share your training activity with other supervisors at your next meeting.
